

2005 Graduation Memories

I remember feeling a range of emotions on the day of graduation. I was excited and proud of myself that I finally did it and that I was done with school despite the obstacles along the way. Yet, I was not quite content knowing that there was still one more BIG step before I could actually be a practicing nurse...taking the nursing board exam! I didn't allow myself to fully enjoy or appreciate my accomplishments until I passed the boards and was officially a Registered Nurse. I have learned a lot from nursing school and being a nurse, especially about myself. Looking back on it now, there are a few things I would have done differently. I wouldn't have been so hard on myself and I have learned to celebrate each victory (big or small) as they come.

Nikki (Patnode) Read, RN, BSN
Mom-Baby Nurse at Fairview Southdale Hospital
U of M SON Class of 2005